Enjoying their Water Wise Garden

Doing their Part to be Water Smart

When Jurupa Valley residents Bob and Priscilla Smith (pictured far right) decided to replace their 2,075 square-foot green lawn with a water-friendly garden, they weren't sure how to start the process. Their lawn had been in place for 26 years, so redesigning their front yard was a bit overwhelming, which is the case for most Californians. However, with statewide water use restrictions in place, the Smiths knew removing their front lawn was the best action to take.

One of their first steps was to look at numerous garden designs. Additionally, Bob attended a Water Wise Landscape Workshop hosted by JCSD. After doing their research, Bob sketched the design and as luck would have it, a landscape company with experience in tree care and lawn removal happened to be in their neighborhood.

The trees and plants in their "new" front yard are now irrigated using a drip system operated by a controller set to water on their authorized watering days - Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. They are very happy with the work completed by the landscape company they selected.

The Smiths said that the entire process from design concept to the installation took approximately three months. While they both agree that not having a lush green lawn is a big change, they have no regrets. Their water conservation efforts go beyond their front yard. A portion of their backyard is no longer being watered, but it is still very well-maintained and beautiful. They are also extremely conscientious when it comes to their indoor water usage. Bob and Priscilla know their actions are permanent and are positive changes that will continue beyond the drought.

The Smith's water conservation efforts are helping the JCSD community meet its 28% state-mandated water conservation requirement. We'd like to thank Bob and Priscilla for being Conservation Champions.

CONSERVATION CHAMPIONS

When compared to June 2013, the Smith's water usage in June 2015 decreased by 45%. Their front yard demonstrates that a drought-tolerant yard can also have a lot of curb appeal!

Mandatory drought restrictions are still in effect.

Don't Flush it Down the Toilet

Pictured above is just a fraction of the trash that is collected at the wastewater treatment facility that serves JCSD customers. The cost of sewer services includes the treatment of wastewater and the disposal of the tons of debris that makes its way through the sewer system.

There are numerous products on the market that are labeled as flushable, but this doesn't mean they are safe for wastewater treatment systems. So-called flushable products can cause blockages and backups in your home. More and more wastewater treatment facilities and homes are experiencing clogged up systems causing costly problems. Why? These products do not degrade as readily as toilet paper.

There are only three items that should be flushed down the toilet - water, toilet paper, and human waste. Everything else goes in the trash. An important thing to keep in mind - items that are flushed down the toilet are still being hauled away to landfills. Skip the step of flushing trash and place it directly in a trash bin. This also reduces the chances of a backup or blockage. Items such as Q-tips, feminine hygiene products, cloth bandages, rags, disposable diapers, dental floss and other items that go through the sewer system each day may also get caught on tree roots that have intruded sewer lines.

These products, when routinely disposed of through the toilet, can also become lodged in sewer pumps and other equipment used to transport wastewater. This can cause damage that requires immediate repair, additional maintenance, and added costs.

JCSD is asking all customers to toss trash into garbage cans and not down the drain or toilet.
